

For Immediate Release

Convert and control video signals from multiple sources for use with today's digital display devices.

Anaheim, California - Available from Foreseeson Custom Displays, is the full line of Ophit optical and digital interface components. The DAU converter from Ophit has been getting excellent reviews as a popular and universal DVI converter.

DAU is designed to accept input signals in VGA, DVI, S-Video, or Video formats, and the output the signal as DVI. Video bandwidth is 1.65 Gbps and the maximum supporting resolution is WUXGA (1920 x 1200), 1080P.

Foreseeson is a provider of innovative, reliable custom display monitors and components. By collaborating with our strategic global partners, Foreseeson has the capability to engineer, manufacture, and support displays and interface components for numerous sectors of the economy. Our products are designed to work together as a complete system solution for virtually any electronic display monitor need. Foreseeson Custom Displays is headquartered in Anaheim, California. Our sales offices are located in the US, Korea, the United Kingdom, and Germany.

To learn more about Foreseeson Custom Displays, visit www.foreseesonusa.com

To learn more about Ophit networking products, visit www.ophitusa.com

Model Name: DAU

